Report to the Listener

Valerie van Isler, General Manager

May Peace Prevail on Earth
1492 – 1992

As we enter the winter season and another December embraces the city, this time of year makes me especially reflective and mindful of history...that which is behind us and that which is to come.

We are now at the edge of a new century and on the eve of the 500th anniversary of the Columbus transit to this hemisphere. While some historians have characterized that encounter of old Europe with a new world as a "civilizing mission," others have called it the most devastating and destructive collision of cultures and peoples that humankind has ever experienced.

Whole worlds of Native American societies disappeared from the face of the earth...forever. Massive displacement, enslavement, and death took place throughout the African continent and elsewhere. Neither world—"new" nor "old"—was ever to be the same again after that lost voyage of 1492.

And to those who ask if we have learned the lessons of history, the more important question is: Whose history? The disappeared millions on the plains of America, the savannahs of Africa, or the mesas of the Southern hemisphere? The trail of tears still flows from Wounded Knee to James Bay, from the Caribbean Basin to the Mexican Gulf, from the barrios of the North to the rainforests of the South.

Beginning this month, and continuing throughout the coming year, WBAI will be examining these issues as the Columbus quincentenary activities take hold both here and abroad. We are already planning important national programming which will take a penetrating and insightful look at the impact of these clashes of cultures on the peoples and civilizations of several continents.

This is an important way to end the year, as December is the month dedicated to the International Declaration of Human Rights and the protection of these rights under law. It also opens the agenda for the coming period as we investigate multiculturalism in the United States and the rise of intolerance in the old world and the new.

Once again, this December we at WBAI make a holiday pledge to all our members, listeners and friends: We shall continue to defend the people's constitutional rights, especially the First Amendment freedoms of press and artistic expression. We shall continue to protect the civil liberties and the human rights of all. We shall stand by and stand for the founding principles of Pacifica radio to help bring forth a more peaceful world. And we give thanks for your extraordinary commitment to WBAI this past year. As we extend the blessings of the season to you and your family, we invite you to join us at the WBAI Holiday Crafts Fair for three weekends of winter magic, highlighted in this special edition of the Folio.

In this season of giving, we hope that you will be especially generous in your support of WBAI so that we can continue to give our best back to you. Happy Holidays from all the WBAI staff.

East Wind Rain

by Tom Wisker

Weaponry (Tuesday nights, 1:30AM) will continue airing its eight-part series, "East Wind Rain," throughout December. While it could be billed as "the road to Pearl Harbor," its scope is wider than that and encompasses related themes such as the development of naval aviation, the political developments in the Pacific, diplomatic history and issues, economic conditions, and the developments in weapons. Produced by Tom Wisker and Jim Dingeman.

Over the next several years, there will be (and indeed, already is) a huge amount of attention paid to the fiftieth anniversary of the Japanese attack on the United States bases in the Hawaiian Islands and the subsequent outbreak of what some historians have called the "Pacific War." The war between the Empire of Japan and the United States and its allies was one of the major components of that vast and truly "world" enterprise known collectively as "World War Two."

The fact is, however, that the Japanese had been fighting a war of conquest in China for almost a full decade, and had fought a full-fledged conflict with the Soviet Union in Manchuria in 1939, which ended primarily because both combatants saw no profitable result possible and were also expecting the "main" war to be elsewhere against other opponents.

Many modern Japanese historians now refer to the period 1930-1945 as "the Fifteen-Year War," and some even talk of a hundred-year conflict dating from 1853 and the "opening of Japan" by a U.S. Navy expedition led by Commodore Matthew Perry (I believe that this is overstating the case by quite a bit). The United States and Japan had regarded each other as rivals and possible enemies, at least in terms of strategic planning, since very early in the century. It was 1907 when the Japanese Navy identified the United States as its most likely potential opponent, and early versions of what was to become War Plan Orange, the basic blueprint for war against Japan, were in the American files as far back as 1897.

All this was set against a backdrop of decaying European colonial empires less and less able to defend their far-flung colonies, a worldwide depression that slowed but did not stop the competition for markets and resources, and nationalistic feelings in Asia long repressed and/or ignored by the ruling powers, most notably and obviously in China. Japan, an island nation with little in the way of the types of natural resources needed by a rapidly industrializing economy, sought to gain them by conquest, first in China, where for some reason they thought that they'd be less resented (or could simply kill off or repress the resentful more effectively), than the major foreign powers already ensconced there. The idea was that Japanese jackboots were supposed to be more welcome than those sent out all the way from Paris or London. Never was a major empire more poorly served by its image-consultants. With American and other foreign power in China largely secured by financial and business clout, and their armed forces' small contingents present mainly as a "police" force in place of the feeble and sometimes barely-there central government, these other colonial powers looked almost saintly by comparison, and news of heinous Japanese depredations filled newsreels and newspapers the world over.

The Japanese had neglected to engage a high-powered PR agency to explain to the world how what it was doing was actually good for the victims in the long run, and this major faux-pas was compounded by the constant portrayal of fearless and godly Western missionaries attempting to save the souls of the heathens, and all that kind of stuff served up by the likes of Henry Luce's TIME Magazine and other outlets. Japan's outraged and self-righteous protestations that they had merely jumped aboard the bandwagon that had been rolling through China for decades fell upon deaf ears, even though there was a considerable amount of truth present in them. Japan was not only desperately short of oil, but, in WASHINGTOON terms, of practitioners of Perceptual Engineering.

Japan, with an industrial capacity less than one-tenth that of the United States, felt itself trapped with its back to the wall and engaged in a desperate fight for national survival. It sounds apocalyptic and extreme now, but that is how Japan's policymakers felt at the time, and however one feels about folks who launch wars of aggression, they were not insane in the clinical sense. The final decision to launch open hostilities against the United States and other Pacific powers was made after U.S. Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes embargoed oil shipments to Japan as punishment for Japanese behavior in China. To the rulers of Japan, this action was an act of war. The plan was to knock out the U.S. Pacific fleet, strike south and seize resource-rich areas including the oil wells and refineries of the Dutch East Indies, and at some point arrange a political settlement with the U.S., which by then would have nothing to gain by prolonged conflict. This plan would have, if successful, left Japan in control of enough oil and other critical items needed to feed an economy moving rapidly along the path of industrialization. It was a desperate plan.

The Japanese Navy felt that if victory was not achieved in the first six months, the war would be lost, and that to expect the United States to accept "reality" and let the war end without victory over those who had attacked it was a pipe dream of the highest order. Given the huge imbalance in industrial capacity between the two countries and the fact that the American people would not stand for any outcome short of victory, many high-ranking Imperial Japanese Navy leaders felt that they were sailing towards a catastrophic defeat.

Two Japanese Navy A6M2 "Zero" fighters strafe the battleship USS Nevada as she attempts to put to sea in the face of the attack's second wave. Painting by Tom Freeman from Pearl Harbor Recalled—New Images of the Day of Infamy; courtesy U.S. Naval Institute Press.

Prominent among these clear-sighted officers was Japan's senior naval aviation expert, who in one of history's supreme ironies was given the task of carrying out this terribly mistaken national policy. Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto had spent a considerable amount of time in the United States as a delegate to the Washington disarmament conferences and, earlier in his career, as a naval attache. He told his superiors that he could pretty much guarantee six months of victories, but had grave doubts about what would come after that. He knew what he was talking about.

The Remembering of Leo

It has been said that what identifies a great work of art as great is its seeming as if it had always existed and as if it had to exist. Leo Cawley shared that quality.

That quality was one of understated irreplaceability. In a McLuhanesque way, he was very cool — he attracted one's willing attention rather than forcing the portals of one's indifference. It has been said of him that, though he had much to say, he preferred to listen. I saw, for the 2 years I engineered his program "Fearful Symmetry", his easy grace in conversation and the facility with which he drew out the best from his radio guests.

The largest measure of what I knew of Leo was learned in the several long weeks during which he contended with government and insurance bureaucrats in order to secure medical treatment and the three months during which he struggled against cancer in a Seattle hospital. In effect, I was a bit player in the drama of his life and a member of his audience behind a console.

If I was more an acquaintance rather than a friend, his audience (which may include you) was, collectively, as a close friend who gave him no little pleasure with its cards and letters conveying appreciation, concern and kind wishes for his recovery. His hospital room was festooned with get-well cards from an audience that he had not known cared so much. They were great morale boosters in a very difficult time.

Now he is no longer with us and what remains are his works and words and the memory that many have of him. It is, perhaps, of the essence of a human being of any stature not to be predictable — and of a memory to be supremely predictable. Even that memory (never fully adequate to the man remembered) becomes less and less true to the man that was. As C.S. Lewis said in his grief for his wife, in time the memory becomes buried, as with snow, in little bits of ourselves until its original shape becomes quite hidden. "The rough, sharp, cleansing tang of [his] otherness is gone."

Leo can no longer surprise us with ideas like his proposal for a National Day of Apology for each of the ethnic groups of this country. He can never again bring to us new impressions, based upon a varied and well-digested reading, such his wonderment at the unexpected and powerful persistence of nationalism into the tail-end of the twentieth century. Let us never say that Leo would or would not such-and-such, for we can never know what his endlessly fresh approach to new events would have been.

Suffice it to say that he did or was or might have but never impose the psychic imperialism of "Leo would . . . ." All of his pain and part of our joy are gone forever.

While it is painful to remember his precious life that was so cruelly cut short, it is impossible to forget. A peaceful rest to you, Leo, our friend.

The Ball's in Your Court

by Theron Holmes-Clarke

Theron Holmes-Clarke is a co-producer of Emanations, Sundays at 8:30PM. Tune in for a full day of AIDS programming beginning Nov. 30th at 7:00PM and continuing throughout December 1st, World AIDS Day.

The Emanations Collective wishes to call our audience, family, all our relations, and our enemies to the announcement of Earvin "Magic" Johnson's retirement from Basketball because he had tested HIV-antibody positive. While we extend our heartfelt support to him and his family, while his stature as sports personality has propelled his visibility throughout the African American, European American, Asian American, and World Communities, we ask that you consider and act in a concerted effort to do more than pity—to move and not become paralyzed, to be sensitive and courageous.

Magic's charisma serves as a focal point, yet no less missed are the hundreds of people, names sewn by hand to identify loved ones, into our AIDS quilt. My brother, Lenard Clarke, passed away of AIDS-related illness three years ago. Willi Smith, TV anchor Max Robinson, Robert Mappelthorpe, Perry Ellis, Rob Jackson, and Richard Washington are no less famous. And the hundreds, thousands, tens of thousands of others who have died deserve no less recognition, whether they are gay and white, red and lesbian, American, Italian, Ugandan or Japanese.

Magic has been diagnosed, not condemned. He does not, as of now, have the massive attack upon the temple—called body—that robs strength, desire, or zeal. Those who have fought the fight have clung tenaciously to precious life, and they have not gone gently. What you can do is demand, act, agitate.

Understand that HIV is more than a virus. It is a call for us all to become family, friend, lover, champion, good Samaritan.

If Magic becomes the pawn of the political and medical establishment, then his announcement is illusion, mirage, and subterfuge. If you find out about sexually transmitted diseases, drug-related diseases, and seek through knowledge, wisdom, and truth to empower, than the thousands of others who are HIV-antibody positive have hope—not pity or sympathy.

If you contact ACT UP, the Black Women's Health Collective, Men of All Colors Together, Daya and Associates, or Gary Null, Betsy Lenke, or other producers at WBAI, these individuals or groups can point you to support groups, newer therapies, and therapies that have shown results.

Being HIV-antibody positive is not the end of Magic. But in a world that sensationalizes and distorts reality, the everyday and the mundane become hidden, wither and die unnoticed.

Magic can be for all of us the Magician's Sunrise to reveal truth. You must become involved, concerned, aware, and active. Silence is no thing and no reward.

Visual AIDS + WBAI = Audio AIDS: Voices and Sounds

7:00PM Nov. 30th - 12:30AM Dec. 2nd

WBAI will join Visual AIDS, a group of arts professionals, on World AIDS Day in its own unique way: as an audio component to a visual day. Dozens of our producers will present a range of realities and considerations regarding behavior, wellness, loss, activism, artmaking, government, and corporate definitions and influences—all with a strong mix of music and sound. There will also be on-the-scene reports from New York's Day Without Art sites, where artists will be responding to the AIDS crisis.

Starting at 7:00 Saturday night, November 30, The Golden Age of Radio will allow listeners to draw from other times via offerings from the vault of the world's most eclectic vintage radio series. Then, from 9:00 to 11:00PM, we present Live from the Nuyorican Poets' Cafe!—poetry, panelists, and salsa—from New York's Loisaida! And back in our studios at 11:00PM, Bob Fass (Radio Unnameable), one of the inventors of Free Form Radio, will bring you a mix of old and new music, neighborhood sounds, guests on the vanguard of thought and action, and listener phone calls.

At 1:00AM, the morning of December 1, Habte Selassie (Labbrish) shares his insights, steeped in the traditions of Reggae, and opens it all to phone calls from you. As dawn breaks, from 5:00 to 7:00AM, join Rocky and Pandora, hosts of Cosmic Debris, for words and music from the Void. At 7:00AM, Regina Fiorito-Sokol, Anthony Coggi, and Manya—hosts of Through the Opera Glass—present a musical celebration of the lives of people in the world of opera who have died of AIDS. We'll also hear from such groups as the Gay Men's Health Crisis, ACT UP, and the Interfaith Pastoral Care Program. From 9:30 to 11:30AM, Chris Whent brings erudition and early music to Here of a Sunday Morning. Today's private life, public discourse, iconography, and capabilities resonate against a backdrop of sounds and information from the 13th through 16th centuries.

At 11:30AM, stay with us for an enactment of a drama "originally conceived for radio." Mike Feder (Hard Work) will present Jack by David Greenspan, and he will interview M. Elizabeth Osborn who anthologized Jack in her book The Way We Live Now: American Plays and the AIDS Crisis. From 1:00 to 5:30PM, we offer a large delicious chunk of bilingual Spanish/English music and informational programming on Con Sabor Latino. Our hardhitting investigative Latina/o news journal, Latino Journal, comes on at 5:30PM with issues of the day. Tonight's WBAI News (6:00PM) features events and individuals who are taking part in Visual AIDS' A Day Without Art, WHO's World AIDS Day, and Red Hot and Dance. There will also be activist and health news.

6:30PM brings us Ryan's (Only in) New York when A Day Without Art will be intermingled with thoughts of the first night of Hanukkah, and you'll get the long answers to The New York Times Sunday crossword puzzle. At 7:30PM, the Gay and Lesbian Independent Broadcasters present Outlooks, which airs every other week. Tonight, Outlooks' guest is Marjorie Hill, Mayor Dinkins' liaison to New York City's lesbian and gay community.

We continue with Emanations—WBAI's collective of progressive producers who reflect and give emphasis to the African community in the Americas—from 8:30 to 10:30PM. And we wrap up this remarkable day with presentations from The Creative Unity Collective—an artists' group which creates and presents radio drama, satire, music, and discussion every other week.

Each of these shows is part of WBAI's regular schedule and could only be produced, on a regular basis, side by side, on nonprofit WBAI 99.5FM.

Crafts Fair Updates: December 1st-22nd

7:30 World View. Samori Marksman hosts this national satellite broadcast looking at international issues.

8:30 Sequoyah. Native American news and issues from the Public Affairs Department.

9:00 Soundscapes: Explorations in Radio, Sound, and Music commemorates the 50th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor with two world premieres which will shatter the myth that traditional Japanese arts are always refined and controlled. The music of Soh Daiko and Kenny Endo is a 20th century interpretation of an art form that dates back to 7th century Japan. Taiko drums have been used to summon rain, to hearten warriors and to call the faithful to Shinto shrines. In the hands of Soh Daiko and Kenny Endo, the ancient rhythms are infused with jazz and the performance style becomes an athletic mix of music, dance, and martial arts. Listen to the sounds, along with interviews with the performers. Produced with Elizabeth Rogers of the Japan Society.

2:30 Our Time of the Month. The monthly magazine of women's issues presents a special in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor: History and Memory: A Talk with Filmmaker Rea Tajiri. During World War II, 120,000 Japanese Americans were interned in concentration camps throughout the Western and Southern parts of the United States. Tajiri's film, the soundtrack of which we'll present, is a moving exploration of personal and cultural memory. She examines her family's camp experience, juxtaposing Hollywood movies and government propaganda with images and stories from her family. In an attempt to recover her family's past, Tajiri finds revealing gaps in both private and public discourse. Her film suggests alternative ways to reimagine both individual and collective histories. Hosts Elizabeth Rogers and Chinami Kondo of the Japan Society will talk with the filmmaker. Executive Producer, Lauren Comiteau.

4:00 Hear and Now. Contemporary sounds with Cynthia Bell and Julie Lyonn Lieberman.

5:00 Soundtrack with host Paul Wunder. All about the cinema with contributors Dr. Joy Browne, Marcia Pally, and Stuart Klawans.

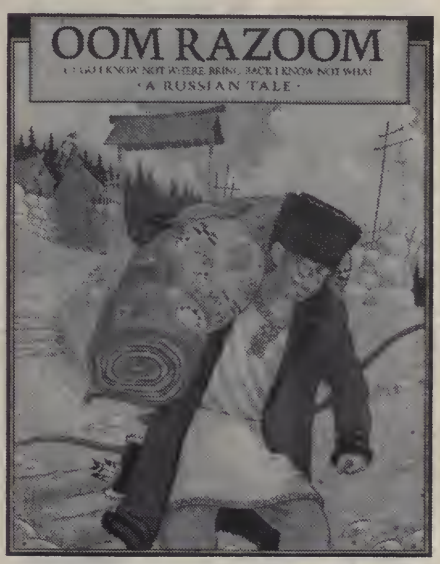
Noon Natural Living. Health and nutrition issues with Gary Null.



1:00 Shelf Life. WBAI's literary series presents a week with the world renowned author, folklorist, and storyteller Diane Wolkstein. Once referred to by Joseph Campbell as the "greatest storyteller in the western world," Diane Wolkstein has spent 25 years all over New York bringing legends and folktales to rapt audiences of young and old. Whether telling a group of Harlem teenagers a Chinese story of a girl who can fly, or eskimo stories at the Museum of Natural History, or lecturing on Psyche and Eros to students at NYU, Diane manages to delight and inspire her listeners. Teacher and author, her storytelling at the statue of Hans Christian Anderson in Central Park has become legendary.

Hear her this week as she tells stories from her bestselling book, First Love Stories, soon to be released in paperback. Famous for her tales for children, Diane will also tell the story of Oom Razoom, just published by Morrow Junior Books. Don't miss it! Produced by Susan Micari for the ArtsDepartment.

"Ann Welch of Iconoclastic Tours has organized a wonderful trip for those who appreciate nature."

Stephen Foehr, Travel writer

The trip is called Herbal Walks and is ideal for walkers, birdwatchers, botanists, and artists.

The locations have been chosen for their beauty and authenticity. And perhaps the special interest in them is that they are off the beaten track. Participants will stay in a village house and experience traditional village life firsthand. As guests of Ann Welch on the island where she lives, you will be treated with warmth and hospitality unlikely to be accorded the ordinary tourist.

You will be able to:

- explore the old paths that few locals have traveled since the 1940s,
- picnic in the flowering hills,
- sail the bay beneath which a vanished city lies,
- witness the Festival of the Bull in a mountain town famous for its horses.
- stay in a seaside hotel near a place where the Trojan Horse is said to have been built.

This is a trip for travelers, not tourists, a trip for those who wish to experience the real Aegean. The price for 14 days is $1,750 including round-trip airfare and transportation, guided walks and hotel stays. All prices based on double occupancy. An extra 7 days accommodation is available free. The group will be small. Vegetarian diets will be respected. Another trip will take place beginning July 2nd at a slightly higher, seasonally adjusted price. For a brochure, call (718) 434-5936 or write 19 Waldorf Ct., Brooklyn, NY 11230.

At 8:00PM, we celebrate the bicentennial of the Bill of Rights with a very special presentation, We Hold These Truths by Norman Corwin. This radio drama sets the Bill of Rights in its historical context and invites the listener to consider the meaning of the document in the everyday lives of American citizens. The original text of the play, written in 1941, was broadcast live on the four major networks and heard by 60 million Americans as the country went to war. Fifty years later, Corwin, the most respected writer for radio, will reflect again upon the document, bringing the wisdom of his years to bear upon its history and current applications. The program features orchestral accompaniment and an introduction by former Chief Justice Warren Burger. Directed by David Ossman; produced by Judith Walcutt for Otherworld Media.

10:30 The Creative Unity Collective Show. Darrell McNeill's Afro Revenge Fantasy Comix #1: If I Had a Hammer. I'd kick his ass, very hard, in a way everyone would enjoy. I'd yank his tired Saturday morning TV show and shoot the weasel that would expose children to that crap. I'd run his record contract through a paper shredder. And I'd laugh in his face that his former employers, the Oakland A's, got swept in the Series last year and finished third in the West this year.

Mr. Charlie: Now you're just being violent, vindictive, spiteful, and counterproductive in being so vicious to someone as popular and positive as M.C. Hammer...

D.Mc.: And what about Public Enemy?

Mr. C.: Well, they advocate violence, and they're anti-Semitic. And they look—

D.Mc.: I THOT SO!!! (proceeds to play Public Enemy VERY LOUD)

Next month: If I Had a New York Post.

(Don't ask what this has to do with the Creative Unity Collective Show. Aside from the fact that Darrell will engineer and play lots of Public Enemy. VERY LOUD.) Stereo, 2 hrs.

In commemoration of the 50th anniversary of Pearl Harbor, Soundscapes presents excerpts from Laurens van der Post's novel, Merry Christmas, Mr. Lawrence, originally published as The Seed and the Sower (1963). The story begins on Christmas Eve in England, five years after the narrator and John Lawrence were freed from a Japanese prison camp in Java. Their reunion becomes an occasion to remember the most vivid and moving aspects of their experience, including their brutal internment in the camp and a white South African fellow prisoner. Out of the violence and misery of war, the two men discover a human affinity that transcends culture and binds all humankind. Radio adaptation produced by Andrew Leslie Phillips, with music from the film soundtrack by Ryuichi Sakamoto.

4:00 Soviet Youth on a Peace Mission: 'Expedition Noah's Ark,' Part I. If there is any hope for the future of our planet, it lies in our youth. Soviet teenagers from Gomel in the Byelorussian Republic near Chernobyl spent the month of October living with families in the community of Kew Gardens, Queens. Their plea for preservation of the environment was presented to schools throughout the city of New York in their musical production, "Expedition Noah's Ark," culminating in a special inaugural performance for City Lights Youth Theater at City Center. The month-long event was sponsored by PCF Artistic Exchanges, P.S.99, and the Kew Gardens community. This broadcast highlights personal and moving testimony by the Soviet teenagers and their teachers, with excerpts from their musical. Tune in tomorrow for Part II. Amazing Grace! (How sweet the sound!)
That sav'd a wretch like me!
I once was lost, but now am found
Was blind, but now I see.

After acclaimed singer Judy Collins appeared in Bill Moyer's PBS special Amazing Grace, she was inspired to tell the story of her feelings about the song and its significance in her life. "Amazing Grace" transcends religions, cultures, color, and geography. People all over the world sing it as a prayer, a consolation, and as a jewel of great beauty and hope in a world torn with strife. Tonight, Peter Schmideg interviews Judy Collins.

Noon Disabled In Action Speaks! For most people, one step is no problem. But for those who use wheelchairs, one step is a formidable barrier which keeps us out. New York City has thousands of entrances with a single step. According to the Americans With Disabilities Act, the elimination of one step is "readily achievable," which means it is easy and inexpensive to do. Disabled In Action has joined the New York City Human Rights Commission and the Mayors Office for People With Disabilities to launch a one-step campaign—a first step toward making the city usable by all people. Grateful Dead New Year's Eve 1991/1992

9:00 The Year of the Rat! A traditional celebration of spirit is brought to you live over the air in New York City and the surrounding universe with an amazing broadcast featuring all of the worldwide events relating to the Grateful Dead and the infinite number of related configurations in nineteen hundred and ninety one: from the Bosavi rainforest of Papua, New Guinea to the halls of the Senate Subcommittee on Aging, from the tribal homelands of the Great Lakes Indians to nine nights at Madison Square Garden; new releases in bluegrass, folk, jazz, computer/experimental, spoken word, the ethereal, nebulous combination of acoustic instruments triggering the latest in MIDI to create the often stunning event known in Grateful Dead jargon as Space; and the innovative combination of Walt Disney and environmental awareness about rainforests that produced a children's book replete with text and illustrations by Wendy Weir and a companion cassette with music and narration by Wendy's brother and Grateful Dead rhythm guitarist, Bob Weir. All this and more!

11:00 A Shortcut Thru 1991. Take an exciting shortcut through the past year with fun-filled stops along the way! Climb aboard our SCUD missile for a mid-East vacation that you won't soon forget: say hello to Big Boris Yeltsin and say goodbye to the Communist Party; a lunchstop in Killeen, Texas, then on to Washington D.C. for that battle on the "Hill" between Anita Hill and Clarence Thomas and a cast of 100 of the finest democracy has to offer....Join Pee Wee Herman and his friends George Bush, Al Sharpton, Michael Jackson, Bart Simpson, Jack Morris, David Ruffin, Jesus Jones, Michael Landon, R.E.M., Doc Pomus, Dr. Seuss, Miles Davis, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, Redd Foxx, Gene Roddenbery, Kent Hrbek, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Tom Petty, Stan Getz, Gene Clark, James Taylor, and Johnny Thunders for a Firestorm in the Playhouse! Introduced by Bill Graham...all mixed up by Peter Bochan.

Midnight Live from Oakland: The Grateful Dead. WBAI's 1991-92 New Year's Eve celebration will commence with a generous helping of the faster than light drive, the band beyond description, the Grateful Dead! As always, we'll feature a live link-up with Oakland, California for the annual concert celebration. Stay tuned for details!

BACKTALK!

WBAI:
Whether or not to make this contribution has been a hard decision this year, as more and more we disagree with a lot of the current programs. However, when there is an important news item, it's WBAI we turn to for unbiased reporting. (We enjoy David Rothenberg, Paul Gorman, and Mike Feder.)

Two old-time listeners going back 30 years
Great Neck, NY

Dear BAI:
I work for a health care provider and see many people with physical and resultant emotional problems—everyday.

What enables me to keep my personal equilibrium (one could easily become depressed, surrounded by illness) is your station and in particular, my favorite—A Positive Mind. Dr. DiMele is very smart and very compassionate.

Sherley Magin
Ridgefield Park, NJ

Dear Mr. Null:
Thank you for being yourself so fully, and sharing that with us....As I have listened to Natural Living these past years almost daily, I received the message of "You Can Do It!" and found great courage to act....

Most sincerely,
Mary S. P.
New York City

Dear Mr. Phillips:
I re-joined WBAI as a member during a recent fund-raising day which focused on environmental issues. I'm writing to let you know that I consider my membership to be an investment in WBAI and that I hope to see a "return" for that investment in the form of more environmental programming. The environment has become a major concern of informed people everywhere in the world and people who turn to WBAI for news and information deserve increased coverage of environmental issues...both locally and globally....WBAI is a community radio station. As a member of Earth's living community, I demand more environmental programming on WBAI!

Sincerely,
Paul D. Law
Brooklyn, N.Y.

WBAI:
Your programming is nothing less than superb! I encourage all of my students to try to catch Undercurrents each morning.

K. Pittman
Manhattanville College
Purchase, NY

Dear Ms. O'Brien:
Thank you for your programs on Cuba. Hoping this is the start of stopping Bush the Destroyer's campaign to destroy Cuba's socialistic government....

Welcome to the 20th Anniversary WBAI Holiday Crafts Fair!

TWENTY YEARS AGO, WBAI began working with a (then) small community of artisans to pioneer New York City's first crafts event. Out of that initial collaboration, 50 exhibitors, almost all from the tri-state area, gathered in the basement of Hunter College for the inaugural WBAI Holiday Crafts Fair.

This December, the WBAI Holiday Crafts Fair celebrates its 20th Anniversary, having grown over these many years into the oldest, largest and finest winter crafts showcase in all of America! We thank the many hundreds of gifted craftspeople who've displayed and sold their unique creations over the years, and... we thank you, as a dedicated Crafts Fair patron... for making this milestone possible.

Our 20th Anniversary WBAI Holiday Crafts Fair is featuring over the course of its three weeks (December 6-8, 13-15 and December 20-22), the handcrafted work of over 325 carefully-selected professional craftspeople from some 30 states. We invite you to meet and talk with these gifted artists and purchase their beautiful work... you will find literally hundreds of unique gift ideas and affordable shopping items for your friends, loved ones and/or yourself (you deserve something special, too).

• As you travel throughout the two floors of Ferris Booth Hall, you will go (from area to area) discovering wonderful handmade work... it is by design that the WBAI Crafts Fair takes place in a series of contiguous rooms and open spaces in Ferris Booth Hall. We work hard to make this unique showcase and sale of American crafts both intimate and comfortable. And remember, each week of the Fair features a new and different group of participating craftspeople (three weekends / three major crafts events), so plan your schedule accordingly!

• As part of our special 20th Anniversary Celebration, we have a number of new features to tell you about. Our Expanded Gift / Author's Table (near the main entrance) has the very best in books and publications from the alternative press, postcards, calendars, bookmarks, buttons and a host of special 20th Anniversary Crafts Fair Memorabilia (including T-shirts, sweatshirts, buttons, and so on).

We also have a 20th Anniversary Crafts Fair Raffle (near the entrance to Wollman Auditorium), featuring beautiful works of art donated by various participating craftspeople (our thanks to them all) and special prizes and services donated by WBAI especially for this occasion. A complete list of prizes is available.

• We hope that you like our new signage and color-coded directional "keys," which should make your shopping even easier and more comfortable. And, we hope that you like our additional festive anniversary decorations!

Well, that's it. Thanks again for coming to the 20th Annual WBAI Holiday Crafts Fair, the oldest and largest winter crafts event in America... by the way, we know that this has probably not been the easiest of years in a number of ways, but... this is a special place (and a special time of year)... you're among friends... so, have a wonderful time!

Happy Holidays,

Matt

Hello, I Must Be Going...

This year's 20th WBAI Holiday Crafts Fair will be my last as Executive Director. My long association with this event... with the crafts community, WBAI, Ferris Booth Hall, the public that's loyally supported all of our efforts these many years... has been the greatest "gift" of my life. It's been an honor and a privilege. My thanks to all of you.

Classified ads...

may be placed by mail (WBAI, 505 Eighth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10018), by fax, by dropping them during business hours at the station, or by phone. Use the form on the back. You must attach a check (payable to WBAI) in the full amount, or your VISA or Mastercharge number; we cannot bill or accept other credit cards, such as American Express. The deadline for us to receive ads is always the tenth of the previous month: Nov. 10 for December, etc.... No exceptions can be made. We cannot guarantee placement of any ad at any time and retain the right to refuse any ad (refunding your money, of course) for any reason. The cost is $15 (the minimum) for the first 35 words and $ .50 for each additional word.

Your ad may be for any legal purpose. You may offer your services, sell your product, seek a lover, promote your organization or whatever. We strongly recommend personal ads use a P.O. box or similar (which we cannot provide). All ads will be formatted as below. The first few words are bold, and no other style is available.
